Flos Olei 2015 - A guide to the world of extra virgin olive oil

Flos Olei it's the first Guide dealing on an international scale with oil farms all over the world and extra virgin olive oil. Strictly selected by a panel of expert tasters coordinated by Marco Oreggia, editor and publisher of the volume. It consists of a presentation of the olive growing sector in 48 countries belonging to 5 continents and also contains a description of the Italian and Spanish regions, supplying historical and cultural information, production data, typical varieties and areas protected by names of origin. In the existing publishing industry the Guide aims at representing a new and stimulating product about the delicate sector of olive growing and is therefore written as an effective, modern and universal means of information. Thanks to the careful and quality work behind it the Guide will be a point of reference for all consumers interested in good food and for national and international workers of the sector.

For seven decades the Los Angeles International Wine Competition has bestowed gold medals to the best wines from around the globe. Sixty years after the wine competition's conception, the addition of the Los Angeles International Extra Virgin Olive Oil Competition was a perfect fit. The extra virgin olive oil competition celebrates its 15th anniversary in 2014. Back in 2000, wine competition organizers were looking for a way to expand the competition. The marriage of extra virgin olive oil and wine was natural. Both require a distinguished palate, both have distinctive varietals, both are important to serving the perfect meal. At its inception, in 2002, the Los Angeles International Extra Virgin Olive Oil Competition enlisted an impressive list of judges to taste the finest domestic and International extra virgin olive oils. The competition was eventually opened to international oils, with oils coming from Italy, Spain, Portugal, Argentina and France. Judging continues on international entries and flavored oils.
